THE POLICY OF LOUIS NAPOLEON—IMPORTANT DECLARATIONS BY A SEMI-OFFICIAL ORGAN.

[From the Constitutionnel of May 12th.]

The policy of peace and neutrality adopted by the Emperor's Government in the present crisis is so conformable to the dignity and the interests of France, it is so sensible and logical, that it scarcely needs any commentary, and can be understood by every one. In his declaration of May 8th, the Minister of State, in re-affirming this policy, and desiring to grapple with certain lamentable prejudices, energetically sets forth the reasons which bound France to the cause of peace and the zeal with which the Imperial Government had applied itself to its maintenance. Upon all occasions when it has had to explain itself the Government has given to Prussia as to Austria, and to Austria as to Italy, none but counsels of moderation. It has warned them against measures which, under whatever pretext they might have been adopted, would eventually only provoke war. It has pointed out the inevitable inconveniences of extraordinary armaments, it has reminded them of the responsibilities as well as the dangers that would accrue to the power which should commence hostilities. This pacific policy necessitated a perfect neutrality as well for the direct protection of French interests as to allow the Emperor's Government to exercise actively in all quarters, and under all favorable circumstances, the influence which in former crises and the services it has rendered in the cause of European order has acquired for it. Neutrality, again, has permitted France to reserve for itself—a subject of great congratulation—an entire freedom of action. This attitude of the Government in presence of the existing contest in Germany, and which threatens to extend to Italy, is therefore, perfectly explained and justified by its inclinations in favor of peace, by its duties towards the interests of France, and by its sympathies for the welfare of Europe. It has, nevertheless, pleased certain parties to attribute other motives. It has been supposed that France has secret arrangements and concealed objects; that she has yielded to suggestions that would be flattering to her ambition. Particular interviews are remarked and quoted as proofs. Individual names are put forward. It is pretended to make known the projects upon which is based the action of Powers which appear to desire war. It is thus sought to charge us with responsibility for the future. Let us declare loudly those rumors, which might end by becoming injurious, have no foundation whatever. Everything contradicts them—good sense, facts, a policy persistently practical. This policy has nothing concealed, and nothing to conceal. It is carried out in open day. Thanks to Providence, France has, in the reign of Napoleon III, a sufficiently great position in Europe not to need to have recourse to crooked schemes. What she thinks, what she wishes, what she wills—all she declares loudly. She has not two policies, of which the mission of one is to cover and dissimulate the other. She has not side by side with her official words and documents other and secret correspondents and engagements. The faithful expression of the sentiments of the country, the government of the Emperor desires to preserve peace upon conditions which will afford full satisfaction to the National honor and interests. It has no other motives, and no other object. It is, then, not permissible to represent the government or the Emperor as engaged in warlike projects which it disapproves and regrets. Such is the exact truth. All the reports which tend to excite in the public mind impressions of a contrary character have no other base than unreflecting suppositions or interested falsehoods.

FRENCH OPINION OF THE WAR CHANCES.

[Paris (May 4) correspondence of the London Times.]

It appears that the Emperor speaks freely with some of his military household on the present state of affairs. He expresses his belief that war is all but inevitable. France is neutral of course, but it shall go hard with her if she does not reap some advantage from it—something to compensate her for her sufferings in other times. "Liberty of action" is the concluding part of Mr. Rouher's programme of the policy of France, and it is probably the part which is meant to be serious.

If anybody really entertains fears of extraordinary measures against the Legislative Chamber, those fears are groundless. The Emperor has no need to have recourse to them. If the legislative body embarass him he can dissolve it when he thinks proper, and would have six months clear before him to convoke another. By the thirty third article of the Constitution the Senate is authorized to provide in the meantime, for all that is requisite for carrying on the government, and in six months a great deal may be done.

It is said that French officers who have recently examined the military resources of Prussia and the organization of her army report that there is not much chance of her success in a campaign against Austria and her German auxiliaries—in fact, that Prussia is no match for her rival.

General Fleury, accompanied by two or three aides-de-camp, has gone to England. There is a great deal of curiosity about the object of his visit at this moment. A few speak of the mission having reference to a Congress; but others think that, if there really be a mission, it is for the purchase of horses for the cavalry.

THE PEACE PARTY.

[Paris (May 13) correspondence of Independance Belge.]

The earnest efforts of diplomacy to prevent an European conflagration are undeniable, especially on the part of England and Russia. They have been joined in to a certain extent by France. All these Powers manifest a warm sympathy with Italy, but none with Prussia. The cession of Venetia is suggested more or less directly, but Austria, unfortunately, is immovable upon that point, at least, for the present, and persists in converting a good cause into a bad one, believing that the events of the last few days have served her interests. Austria would under any circumstances demand a territorial compensation were she to abandon Venetia, and mention has been made, ironically it must be supposed, of Silesia, but it is evident that such a proposition could not be made to Prussia without placing right and justice on her side. Is it not then, the restoration to Italy of a province which belongs to it that, according to all appearances, will be the means of preventing war. This fact is much to be regretted, as it is only by such an arrangement that the peace of Europe can be assured. However, there still remain some chances of a further postponement of actual war. These chances rest upon the obvious reflections and perhaps the hesitations of the Prussian Government in view of the formidable, unanimous and irrevocably determined attitude of the imposing majority of States which has pronounced against Prussia, and which will certainly be increased by a part of the minority whenever the absolute necessity of a choice shall arise.

THE TREATIES OF 1815.

(From the Pall Mall Gazette of May 14.)

As the treaty of Vienna may once more be made the stalking horse of Bonapartist ambition, it may be interesting to the general reader who is more learned in present politics than in past history, to be reminded what that famous treaty really was. In the first place it was signed by a larger number of States than had ever before united in a settlement of European affairs, including Austria, France, England, Russia, Prussia, Spain, Portugal and Sweden. Coming almost immediately after the widespread shattering of old landmarks consequent upon French conquests the rearrangement of territories amounted almost to a reconstruction. This reconstruction was based almost exclusively on dynastic considerations, the real welfare of nations and the tendencies of what are now called "nationalities" being scarcely thought of. Everywhere were nations, or fragments of nations, placed under foreign sovereignties.

England's gain, indeed, was fully equalled by her loss in the new plan. She kept Malta, which was essential to her position in the Mediterranean, and where her rule was not unwelcome; for the sake of Europe generally she undertook the protectorate of the Ionian Islands, now got rid of, and to satisfy royal prejudices, she also preserved the kingdom of Hanover, now also got rid of.

In Italy, Milan and Venice were given to Austria, and Sardinia was confirmed to Piedmont, while the Duchies of Tuscany, Parma, Modena and Placentia were recognized as sham independent sovereignties, governed by collateral branches of the Austrian Hapsburg. Austria still further obtained possession of the Tyrol, Illyria and Dalmatia.

Prussia's gains were enormous, and, unlike many of the Austrian, were acquisitions of real power. With half of Saxony, nearly all Westphalia, Swedish Pomerania, and almost all of the Lower Rhine provinces she started afresh as a rival of Austria far more formidable than before.

In the north of Europe, Russia received Finland from Sweden, as a compensation for which Sweden received Norway, which was taken from Denmark; and Denmark, who was not represented at the congress, got nothing in return.

As to Poland, the three great petitioners made some fresh rectification of boundaries.

The innumerable small German States which had existed before the French revolution, and which had been what diplomatists called mediatized, or, as plain people call it, swamped at the setting up of the Bonapartist Confederation of the Rhine—these all remained swallowed up by their powerful neighbors.

Holland, having ceded her German possessions was consoled with the Belgic provinces and became a kingdom, and Switzerland remained much as before.

In the same year, 1815, political pharisaism accomplished its masterpiece, the Holy Alliance between Austria, Russia and Prussia, by which they bound themselves to act for the future on Christian principles only, and immediately proceeded to enforce the absolute supremacy of kings as the one great principle of Christianity. All Europe acquiesced in the announcement with three noble exceptions—the Sultan, whose opinion was not asked, and England and the Pope, who both declined to have anything to do with the imposture.

Trial of Jeff Davis—Summary of the Points Involved.

[From the Washington "Intelligencer."]

The recent references to the trial of Jeff. Davis have called public attention to this subject, which, very naturally in a large degree, interests the public mind. The indictment in the usual form for treason has been found by the Grand Jury in the United States Circuit Court at Norfolk.

Davis is indicted under the Act of 1790, under which the penalty, on conviction, is death. He could have been indicted under the act of July 31, 1861, for a seditious conspiracy, the punishment of which is a fine, not over $5,000, and imprisonment, with or without hard labor, not over 6 years.

One of the most important points is the drawing of the petit jury, who are charged with the trial of the prisoner. The jury is to be drawn according to lot, or otherwise, according to the mode practiced in the State for selecting juries for the highest courts of law. The number of jurors to be summoned is left to the discretion of the Court as at common law. The act of July 16, 1862, repeals so much of the act of 1789 as requires, in cases punishable with death, that 12 petit jurors be summoned from the county where the offence was committed. Under the act of June 17th, 1862, no person is allowed to sit on the jury who was in any degree of complicity with the rebellion. This is an act of controling importance, because it insures that the trial shall be before a loyal jury.

Davis cannot be tried by any of his confederates. His fate will rest entirely with his political opponents. The jury must be unanimous, or there can be no verdict. This is the invariable rule of the common law, and has existed time whereof the memory of man runneth not the contrary. The presiding judge can rule authoritatively on questions of evidence as they may arise in the progress of the trial, but as the jury always, in criminal cases, return a general verdict of guilty or not guilty, they are practically the judges of the law as well as the fact, and there is no appeal from their decision. There has never been any exception to this principle in the common law, except that in cases of libel it had frequently been determined by the Court of King's Bench that the only question for the consideration of the jury, in criminal prosecutions for libel, was the fact of publication and the truth of the innuendoes, and that the Court alone was competent to determine whether the subject of the publication was or was not a libel. And it was for this ruling of Lord Mansfield that the celebrated Junius so bitterly attacked Lord Mansfield. Lord Camden, the friend of liberty, differed from Lord Mansfield, and the matter was finally put to rest by the memorable act of Parliament of 32 George III., known as Mr. Fox's Act, which determined the law against Lord Mansfield's judgment, by expressly recognizing the right of the jury to determine the facts and law of the case by a general verdict of guilty or not guilty.

The trial can only end in one of three ways:

1. By verdict of guilty.
2. By verdict of not guilty.
3. By the inability of the jury to agree.

In the event of this third alternative arising, the first question which will arise is, whether Davis will be entitled to bail. The Constitution provides that "in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial." In determining whether Davis, after more than a year's close imprisonment, would be considered, in the event of the disagreement of the jury, to be discharged on bail, would be a question of legal discretion, to be determined by the Judge. By the celebrated Habeas Corpus Act of 31, Charles II., it was provided, 6. "That every person committed for treason or felony shall, if he require it, the first week of the next term, or the next session of Oyer and Terminer, be indicted in that term of session, or else admitted to bail, unless the King's witnesses cannot be produced, and if not tried and indicted in the second term or session, he shall be discharged from his imprisonment for such imputed offence." It is not likely our judges would take a less favorable view of the prisoner's application than in the rule furnished by this statute. The serious question would be, how many terms of the court have passed since the prisoner was first arrested? His counsel would in all probability contend that by intendment of law United States Courts were holding their regular terms for the last 12 months in the State of Virginia, or at least might have done so.

A further provision of the Constitution might perhaps also, in the event of a disagreement of the Jury, be invoked in behalf of the prisoner—that one which sets forth as follows: "Nor shall any person be subject for the same offence, to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb." The meaning of this rule is, that a defendant is in legal jeopardy the moment a petit jury is charged with the decision of his case. But though there has been some difference of opinion on the point it may be assumed that when the jury are discharged from the further and final decision of his case, because of their inability to agree, the prisoner may be held to be tried anew. At one time in England, where the jury could not agree on a capital case, the judge, instead of discharging them at the end of the term, had them carted round the circuit with him. This practice, however, is exploded.

In case, then, of the inability of the jury to agree, the utmost that the prisoner could ask, from that fact alone, would be the right to be out of prison on bail.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 4, 1866.

The National Anniversary

It has pleased the Almighty to permit the 90th anniversary of our national independence to dawn upon our Union undivided and, as we believe, indivisible. The schemes and plottings of its enemies, whether without or within have come to nought, saving only to strengthen in the American heart a deeper veneration for those who in "seventy six" refused to be slaves, and a firmer resolve to worthily use the legacy of freedom they left us. The nation which began with a handful of people and a cluster of but thirteen States, through the beneficent influences of civil and religious liberty, has expanded itself over the greater part of a continent and the people who then sang Liberty's anthem only to the answering of the Atlantic's waves, have carried the inspirations of that day wherever they have dwelt, wherever they have journeyed, till to-day, a vast glad shout from the Pacific echoes back the gladness shouted from the Atlantic. The energy and the integrity which have thus preserved, widened and strengthened the Union, are still predominant characteristics of the American people and the most sure guarantees that the Union shall forever stand. Having a Government which has most amply proven its stability and justified much of that vaunt which holds it up to admiration as "the best Government on earth," our people may well spend to-day with all the jubilations which invention is father to. It will be an unhappy day, indeed, for this country when our people shall forget to hail the recurrence of this anniversary with demonstrations of joy and to renew from the inspirations flowing down through it from 1776, their fealty to the Union and to the idea of universal freedom. We have no fears that such a day will ever lower upon our favored country. The patriotism of the people, however it may for a time be misled, may be safely trusted to perpetuate itself and to hand down from generation to generation this anniversary as the choicest, the greatest of all the days of the year. As often as it shall return, Americans will honor it.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.—New Hampshire and Connecticut have ratified the Constitutional amendment submitted by Congress. Oregon will doubtless ratify it in September. We believe that the justice and necessity of the measure will so commend the proposition that the requisite two-thirds of all the States will ratify it at the next session of their Legislatures. It will be an occasion for heartfelt rejoicings when this matter shall be finally disposed of. In the very nature of things such a question can scarcely come before the people without arousing many of the baser passions and engendering prejudices that time alone can remove. Any other plan of reconstruction would have been no less so. It is not the plan but the necessity of there being a plan, which is the evil.

The prompt adoption of the amendment will serve the two-fold purpose of gaining admission for Southern representatives into Congress, and satisfying the loyal States of the good faith with which such representatives resume their share of the control of the Government. Then the work of re-establishing the amity between the lately hostile sections, without which there can be no real Union, will have had a practical beginning.

The Richmond Examiner does not quite agree with the Northern Copperheads that Virginia is fully as loyal as any of the Northern States. In a recent issue it said:

> While Diogenes carried his lantern to but little purpose in looking for an honest man, he would absolutely waste his candle in searching for white Union men in Virginia.

Notwithstanding this and similar declarations, made almost every day, by leading Virginians, the Copperheads insist that Virginia shall be at once restored to her old place in the Union, without conditions or guarantees.

An eastern paper advises that the term "Copperhead" be dropped in politics. Whenever the Copperheads succeed in making us forget the appropriateness of the term, we will drop it. Meantime, as we have occasion to drop, now and then, a remark on Copperhead*ism*, we will drop the term "Copperhead" along with the remark.

The Copperheads often treat us to a terrible and sickening picture of the mortality among the freed negroes—always with the implied moral, "freedom is fatal to the negro." The New Orleans Picayune says, the negro population of New Orleans is now three or four times larger than it was before the war.

To-day, for the first time since 1860, the American flag will float, probably, in every city and town in the United States. The glorious old banner, in itself, is worth a thousand orations for reconstructing in the hearts of the people, a veneration for the glorious old Union.

The redoubtable Wigfall is lecturing in London. Subject: "The negro"—of course.

FROM WALLA WALLA.

We clip the following from the Statesman of the 29th ult.

ESCAPE OF PRISONERS.

This week we have the unpleasant duty of recording the escape of two prisoners from jail, namely: Lewis Allerton (sentenced for one year for highway robbery) and Thomas Donahue, (who was to have had a second trial in July for the killing of Ferd Patterson—the jury, as is well known, not agreeing at the former hearing of the case.) Allerton, it appears, was in the jail-yard with other of the prisoners, on Wednesday, June 20th, and made his escape by climbing over the board wall, about dark, and unobserved by the jailor. Search has been made for him over the valley, but thus far, to no purpose. Donahue's escape is surrounded by mystery. By what agency the escape was effected—the hour of night—where he has gone—are all matters of conjecture. It is known that the escape occurred some time during the night of Friday, the 22d, and that Donahue did not get out without assistance. Keys to fit the doors had been manufactured of brass material, by some, as yet, unknown person or persons, and they were left at the door of the jail when the escape was made. It is asserted, positively, by persons competent to judge that these keys could not have been made in the prisoner's cell. They displayed the marks of practical workmanship about them; and besides the keys were of a difficult pattern to make.

CHILD DROWNED.

A little boy, son of Mr. W. P. Chesher, and some three years old, was drowned in the Walla Walla river, June 22d, under the following circumstances. Mr. Chesher had just crossed the river with his wagon, and was driving slowly along when he heard a child behind him give a violent scream. He ran to the bank of the river immediately, but was too late; his child, in attempting to follow the wagon, had got part way across the stream on a foot-log, and had fallen in. The water running very rapidly at this point, the current swept the child immediately below.

A WOOLEN MILL.

It may interest our readers to know that parties having the necessary capital, are taking the preliminary measures toward the establishment of a woolen mill at Walla Walla, and that the prospect is that inside of a year the wool product of this valley will cease to be sent abroad for the purpose of being manufactured.

THE WHITMAN SEMINARY.

We learn that subscriptions in aid of the Whitman Seminary Fund are flowing in quite freely, and that with the amount already on hand and the money promised the Trustees—Messrs. McKee, Chamberlain and Boyer—feel justified in commencing building operations.

FORT LAPWAI ABANDONED.

We learn that orders have been issued directing the withdrawal of the Government troops from Fort Lapwai. It is understood that the post is to be permanently abandoned, and that the Government property is now being removed to Fort Walla Walla.

NO FIRE DEPARTMENT.

We learn that the City Council Board, which have had in contemplation for some time past a bill for the organization of a fire company, at their last meeting quashed the whole thing, thus leaving the City without any fire department whatever.

REWARD OFFERED.

We notice that Sheriff Seitel offers $500 reward for the arrest of the two prisoners who were let out of the county jail a few nights since.

WET SEASON.

The rains that have characterized the season thus far, still continue. With occasional clear, sunshiny days, we have rainy nights. These continuous rains seem to have spread over an immense extent of country. From our Salt Lake exchanges, we learn that the "saints," since their settlement in that country, have never before experienced so much rainy weather in the Spring and Summer. Heretofore in that valley, farmers have mainly depended upon irrigation, without which their crops must have died out. This year the reverse obtains and instead of a lack of moisture, the fear is that the crops will be drowned out.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The steamer Bremen, from Southampton on the 20th of June, has arrived.

Prussia on the 18th formally declared war against Austria. Italy, also, the same day declared war.

The entrance of Prussians into Saxony was preceded by a formal declaration of war against that Kingdom, to which the King of Saxony responded by a proclamation to his faithful people.

The King of Saxony left Dresden to join the army in Bohemia, and it is rumored that the Saxons had effected a junction with the Austrians, and that the Prussians occupied Dresden and overran the entire kingdom, rushing to Bohemia. The Austrians had made a demonstration on the Silesian frontier, near Neisse, and the entry of the Austrians into Saxony was hourly expected. The King of Hanover had joined the army at Gottingen.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The steamer City of Boston brings dates to the 21st. No serious collision has yet taken place in Germany.

The ministerial crisis in England was believed would end in the resignation of the ministers and dissolution of Parliament.

The Prussians left a small garrison in Dresden and advanced into Bohemia without resistance.

A slight collision had occurred between the Austrians and Prussians in Silesia, when the former retired.

The Prussians have entered Austrian Silesia. St. Petersburg advices deny that there has been any movement of the Prussian troops, and says non intervention continues to be the policy of Russia. Nothing authentic has been made known of the communication made by France to Austria, but the Vienna press says France denies having made any agreement with Prussia, and that if Austria does not menace the existing kingdom of Italy, and if successful does not advance beyond Milan, France will not interfere, but will assist in the conclusion of a definite peace, and further propose to Italy to pay an indemnity for Austrian expenses for the war.

The Paris Bourse closed on the 24th, unsettled at 62 francs 85c.

The Liverpool cotton market closed on the 23d with an advance of 1½ and 3-4 pence under favorable advices from India. Uplands quoted at 13 and 13½.

Breadstuffs inactive but firm. Provisions quiet and steady.

Consols closed Saturday at 86¼ and 86½ for money. 5-20's 66 and 66¼.

Victor Emanuel had issued a stirring manifesto to Italians, in which he recapitulates the effect of the last war on Italy, and reiterates that for supreme reasons, the noble province of Venetia was then allowed to remain in the hands of Austrians, but a favorable opportunity has now arrived to accomplish the independence of Venetia from the Austrian rule. He charges Austria with having assumed a hostile and threatening attitude on the Italian frontiers, to disturb the pacific task of reorganization in Italy, and he had replied by taking up arms, but nevertheless, showed a desire for peace by accepting a proposal for conference. Austria having refused, affords fresh proof that if she confides in her strength, she does not rely equally upon the goodness of her cause and of her right.

The manifesto concludes with the patriotic declaration of confidence that Italy has the sympathy of Europe and he hands over the government of State to the Prince of Carignano. [illegible] and Victor Emmanuel also issued proclamations to the National Guards, confiding to them the guardianship of the public security and order.

The Italian military declaration of war was issued June 20th from the Headquarters of the Italian army at Cremona, and is addressed by General [illegible] to Archduke Albert commanding the Austrian army at Venetia, and gives notice that hostilities will commence in three days, unless the Archduke declines to accept the delay.

Victor Emanuel left Florence for camp on the 21st, and was received enthusiastically and had ovations on his way. He arrived at Cremona the same day.

The declaration of war against Austria carried great rejoicing throughout Italy.

The Chamber of Deputies adopted by a large majority, bill granting extraordinary financial power to the Government.

Prince Carignano had arrived at Florence and opposed the Government. He was well received.

The Nord describes the position of the Austrians opposed to the Prussian army under Gen. Benedek, which is in position on the Prussian frontier or side of Silesia, as being in two semi circles, of which extremities are formed by Prussia, supported by the fortifications of Theresienstadt, and by Cracow, which being strengthened by a company lately formed there, while the center of the Area is defined by three fortresses of which two are very strong—Joseph Stadt and Olmutz. The Austrian commander-in-chief appears to have concentrated a great part of his army in upper Silesia, by which he may commence the attack on Prussian Silesia. On the Prussian side the strictest orders are given against surprise and the advance guards are doubled, and videttes are placed on rising grounds, whence they look into Bohemia. Patrols are constantly watching the frontier and signal lights are ready to announce the appearance of the enemy. On the side of Austria, the guard of the frontier of Bohemia is not so strict. It is stated that the two States whose levies are congregated at Frankfort, are much discouraged at the aspect of affairs and greatly disposed to complain that Austria thrust them into war before she was able to protect them. It is rumored that Bavaria hesitates at present to take an active part in the campaign on the grounds that Austria is not ready. The London Times, speaking of the apparent delay on the part of Austria, observes that it is her obvious interest to be successful in beginning the campaign.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—The steamer Del Norte which left Crescent City in the afternoon of June 30th arrived here to-day at noon. She brings $14,772 in treasure.

The celebration bids fair to be one of the best ever held in San Francisco. The procession will be unusually large, and military and civic societies so arranged as to keep up interest throughout the entire line. The literary exercises at Metropolitan Theatre will be of a high order of excellence, and the exhibition of fire works in the evening it is said, will surpass anything of the kind ever seen in the city.

John L. Wright, a native of Massachusetts, aged 31 years, was committed to Stockton yesterday as insane. He imagines the people wish him harm and he will come to want, and has made several attempts on his life.

The suit of John B. Frisbie vs. Samuel Fowler et al for the possession of a portion of Suscol Ranch, bounding on Napa creek, is on trial in the Thirteenth District Court before a jury. The case is an important one.

Charles P. & John Duane will be arraigned before Judge Pratt on Monday next, to plead to an indictment against them charging them with the murder of Wm. Ross.

The steamer Oregon advertised to sail for Colorado river on Thursday next has been withdrawn for the present.

The Twelfth District Court adjourned this morning out of respect to the memory of the late Charles Sp[illegible]. Judge Pratt in granting the motion paid an [illegible] tribute to the memory of the departed, and held up his life as an example to the younger members of the legal profession.

The Markets.

Butter—The shipment of eastern by the steamer on the 30th ult was 1850 firkins including the [illegible] on the steamer now due. There are over 9,000 firkins now on the way to this port from the east. The market is dull at 25 cents for choice.

Coffee—Sale of 1,000 bags Rio private [illegible] at 21½.

Coal Oil—Sales of eastern standard have [illegible] at 77½@80c. [illegible]

Flour—The market is dull except as to jobbing, sales 400 bbls Oregon extra in [illegible] at $4 62½@$4 87½ per 100 lbs.

Wheat—[illegible] at $1 70 and [illegible] at $1 60.

Barley—Included in sales were 3,000 sks good brewing at $1 [illegible]; 800 sks feed closed at 80c; 200 sks feed at 80c, and 600 sks light feed at 77½c per 100 lbs.

Oats—Sales of 150 sks fair for export at $1 42½. Choice will bring $1 50 per 100 lbs.

Potatoes—300 sks sold at 75@80c and 200 sks a Bay at 70c a [illegible] per 100 lbs. Choice Bay [illegible] quote [illegible] at 80c.

Hay—Sales of 50 tons new ordinary at $8 50, and 22 tons do [illegible] at $6 50 per ton.

Gold Quotations—Legal Tenders.

Gold quotations received here quote gold in New York on the 30th at 155. Later dispatches of the same day quote it at 158. Sterling Exchange, 163⅝@169¾. Yesterday gold was quoted at 151.

The brokers quote legal tenders at 70 buying, 71 selling.

Private dispatches of the 29th represent the New York dry goods market very firm for standard goods.

General trade is dull. No business of importance is expected to be done during the present week in consequence of National holiday to-morrow.

Sailed—Jd, Hamburg bark Joachim, Christian, Sydney; bark Chas Devens, Puget Sound. July 3d, bark [illegible], Melbourne.

STATE ITEMS

The railroad company organized in 1863 in this State, for the purpose of securing a survey of the Oregon portion of the California and Oregon railroad, having forfeited its franchise by lapse of time, other parties are taking the necessary steps to organize a new company.

We learn by telegraph that Edward Barnes, [illegible] keeper at the [illegible] City, died suddenly yesterday at about half past the [illegible].

On the night of the 24th ult the Indians stole away [illegible] horses from the Washington Ranch, Powder river valley. Some six weeks ago they stole the same number from Miller's Ranch in the same vicinity. Last year they stole over one hundred within a circle of ten miles around Auburn.

We learn that Hanxhurst, at Salem, was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary for the killing of [illegible].

In a recent debate in the Senate, Doolittle of Wisconsin, in reply to Mr. Howe, said he "had no confidence in newspapers. He did not read them latterly." He had better read them; otherwise he may soon forget what an ass he is. Should the newspapers adopt his tactics and take no further notice of him, Doolittle would soon have little to do with public affairs. He would sink back to the obscurity out of which the newspapers lifted him.

C. S. MACK,

DENTIST,

Assisted by J. H. HATCH, D. D. S., of the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery, late of San Francisco, California. It is sufficient commendation that he is endorsed as a Dentist of Superior Skill and a Gentleman by Messrs R. H. McDONALD & CO., Dr. COLE, Dentist, and many others of San Francisco.

The Patronage of those desiring FIRST CLASS and FINISHED OPERATIONS is particularly requested.

MONTANA TRADE.—A few days since, in alluding to the importance of the Montana trade to the citizens of Portland, we endeavored to show that the most important step necessary in this direction, would be to establish a permanent line of first class steamships between this port and San Francisco, and that the ships thus employed should be owned by Oregonians, who furnish the business, etc. We are happy to learn that the suggestions we presented have been favorably considered, and that it is now almost certain that the Oregonian now being built in New York, by Bradford, Ladd & Co., will be placed on the line. We are told that the owners of the Oregonian are willing to take stock in a sister ship, to run in connection with her, and we also learn that quite a sum has been pledged to aid in the construction of the second ship. The New York owners have been written to on the subject and should a favorable answer be received, active steps will be taken in this direction. No one can fail to see the favorable impression made on the public mind, by the arrival in our port of the fine steamer Oriflamme. She appears to be a ship well adapted to our trade, is new, comfortable, light draught, fair speed, and is in every way a great improvement on the old and unpopular ships heretofore employed in the trade. There is very little doubt but that we are indebted to the owners of the Oregonian for the spur that has goaded on the old companies, and forced them to offer better facilities as is evidenced by the appearance of the Oriflamme. This is well, as far as it goes, but a few more "spurs" are needed. We are informed on good authority that the C. S. N. Co. are taking freight destined for Owyhee, free, over the line from San Francisco to Red Bluffs; that they are induced to this step for the double purpose of starving the Montana by reducing the amount of freight to the Columbia river, and injuring some of the owners of the Oregonian, who are said to be large owners in the C. S. N. Co., and who, by attacks of this kind, they vainly hope to deter from interfering with the carrying trade of the coast. Whatever may be the result, we are persuaded that a better state of things will prevail in the future, and that the trade so illy provided for in the past will soon be supplied with first class steamships that must of necessity greatly increase the commercial interests of Portland, and hasten in a great degree, the development of the mining districts east of the Cascade range, to which Portland must look for a trade sufficient to support the increasing population that has already made our young place assume city proportions. The news recently received from Pen d'Oreille Lake is of the most flattering character. The steamer Mary Moody is making daily trips across the lake, and is said to be doing a very profitable business. When Mr. A. C. Ripley left there recently, six pack trains were in waiting to cross the lake, bound for Blackfoot and Helena. Mr. Ames, a merchant of long standing in Helena, Montana, was induced to try the San Francisco market, and ship his goods via the Columbia river. He passed up during the early part of last week with about twenty five tons, and expects to ship via Pen d'Oreille Lake. Packers have offered to pack his goods from the Columbia river to Helena at 15 cents ℔ lb. He feels confident that the whole cost from San Francisco to Helena will not exceed 17 cts. ℔ lb., and the time occupied in transportation will not exceed forty days. This is certainly a good showing as compared with other routes. Mr. Ames has arranged to order goods monthly by this route, and is much pleased with his prospects. Mr. Ripley is a well known citizen of Portland. He recently returned from the Montana mines, and he speaks in the highest terms of praise of that wonderful country, and is confident that most of the supplies for that section will be shipped via Pen d'Oreille Lake, and thus it is by the accumulation of testimony that we are encouraged to urge upon our capitalists and enterprising men, the importance of adopting measures, having in view the rich reward that must crown our efforts if we succeed in securing the Montana trade.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.—DEADY JUSTICE.—Tuesday, July 3, 1866. U. S. vs. Swift. Indictment for violating Internal Revenue Act. Defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs......W. F. Trimble, on motion of Lansing Stout, was admitted to the Bar, and filed the oath of allegiance and office......Masfield vs. Steamship Oregon. Suit in Admiralty for the value of a large trunk, alleged to have contained valuable wearing apparel. Most of the day was consumed in hearing the testimony and the case was submitted with leave to file brief of authorities......U. S. vs Briggs, et al. Action on Receiver's bond for alleged conversion of public money; amount claimed, three thousand and some hundred dollars. Continued on application of defendant, on allegation that he was entitled to a credit of $700, and that it was necessary to apply to the Department for evidence that the sum had been presented for elsewhere......U. S. vs Geo. Briggs, No. 2. Action on Receiver's bonds amount claimed $30. Issue joined and submitted to the Court to be tried......The Grand Jury came into Court and returned one true bill for burglary and were discharged...... Court adjourned over the 4th...... The Court room was no cooler than it was the day previous. Would Secretary Harlan could see it, or rather feel it.

[illegible] EXERCISE.—The weather is too extremely warm [illegible] in about of undue exercise, but when any refractory [illegible] is go on board of a steamer, as was the [illegible] a steer yesterday which objected to taking passage [illegible] Vancouver, there may be some apology for creating an excitement. The steer we are speaking of was [illegible] to coercion, and after succeeding in getting Turnbull of the Fannie Troup into the river, went galloping up Washington street, in the direction of the woods. He was followed soon after by Mr. Robert Everding, on horseback, and at last dragged on board of the steamer, but not without much trouble and excitement.

DROWNED.—Yesterday afternoon as a party of courtesans were bathing in the river above this city, one of them named Kate Allison, was drowned. A verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts, by Coroner Hoffman. The woman was cautioned to come back, as she was getting into deep water, but she replied telling her companions to "go to hell," and then sank to rise no more alive. She belonged at Liz Williams' shebang on Washington street, and it is said has respectable parents in California.

BATHING.—There are prescribed limits to the grounds for bathing in this city, and persons who desire to indulge in the luxury, must not go into the Willamette within the scope of those limits. The judgment of any man is sufficient, or ought to be, to inform him where to bathe, and where not to bathe, but it seems some do not care for decency, and two of this class yesterday paid fines before Recorder Hoffman for their shamelessness.

YUBA DISTRICT.—The wonderful discovery of quartz at [illegible] Boise has been confirmed. A friend says: "It is only a pocket," but no matter, a pocket full of rock like that is pretty good. We know of smaller pockets that have no such prospects before them. The seam—[illegible] writes—is five inches wide, and more than half gold. From this it would seem the pocket was a good one.

NO PAPER.—The employees of this establishment will take themselves to shady bowers, cool cabins of steamboats, and wherever else they can find shelter from the scorching rays of Sol, in their endeavors to celebrate the Fourth day of July, the 90th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, hence there will be no paper issued from the office to-morrow morning.

THE JULIA.—Capt. Smith, of the Julia, had his craft very tastefully decorated last evening, for the excursion to Vancouver to-day. The Portland and Vancouver people will celebrate together, and a good time is anticipated. The steamer will leave at 8½ o'clock. The Zouave Cadets go to Vancouver by the Julia; also the Mechanics' Brass Band.

ANOTHER NEW STEAMER.—The new steamer Ranger, built for Mr. Fisher in this city, is now completed, and made her trial trip last evening. We were not informed of the intentions of her owner, hence was not present on her trial trip, which was not in accordance with our custom. We learned, however, that she behaved satisfactorily.

THE ALERT.—The steamer Alert, Capt. Baughman, will leave her wharf to-day at 8½ o'clock A. M., and 1½ o'clock P. M., returning at 3 o'clock P. M. to-day, and 6 o'clock A. M. to-morrow morning. The Washington Guard go to Oregon City this morning by this steamer.

REAL ESTATE SALE.—The residence and grounds of Col. A. P. Dennison, corner of Stark and Third streets, being lot 1, block 47, 50 by 100 feet, sold at auction yesterday by Mr. A. B. Richardson for the sum of $7,030. Dr. R. Glisan was the purchaser.

FOREMAN ELECTED.—Mr. John H. Perry was elected as Foreman of Vigilance Hook and Ladder Company last evening, to fill a vacancy for the remainder of the current year.

HONORI-BUSQUES.—We learn that the Honori-Busque Society of masqueraders, will rendezvous at the Penitentiary—or high water mark—this evening precisely at 5 o'clock, preparatory to a grand procession.

YOUNG DUCKS.—The high water has sadly interfered with the duck family in this region the present season but few young ducks are to be seen anywhere along our rivers.

THE FANNIE TROUP.—This steamer, Capt. Turnbull at the wheel, will make an excursion to Vancouver to-day, leaving at 9 A. M. and returning at 3 P. M.

CELEBRATION AT MILWAUKIE.—The people of Milwaukie will celebrate to day. An oration will be delivered by W. T. Matlock, Esq.

PRIVATE EXCURSIONS.—The Commodore Perry is ready to go on private excursions at any time.

The steamship had not been telegraphed at the hour of our going to press.

FROM IDAHO

We clip the following from the Ruby City Avalanche of June 23d:

CRICKET PLAGUE.

Along Jordan, crickets literally cover the ground in many places and are plenty all along the creek. They do not retrace their steps the same year. It is hard to tell from whence they came whither they are going or why they are permitted to make part of the great multitude of creation.

THE POORMAN COMPANY.

The Company have [illegible] party in their mill [illegible] shaft. It is thirty [illegible] feet and [illegible] more promising than ever. Have just been shown an assay of the rock yielding $347 per ton. The company expect to get two hundred tons of Dardanelles rock to their mill very soon. Capitalists have made very fair offers for the mine.

THE CHRISTMANIT LEDGE.

Crops are plenty for nearly a half mile. [illegible] shown to be [illegible]. Owners are determined to prove its value as soon as possible. The work thus far shows several strata of quartz—mostly decomposed. One of them is clearly enough defined and about twenty inches wide. The ledge seems to be broken rather irregularly. Several tons of rock at the dump prospects very well in gold. The decomposed quartz gives a prospect of from several colors to twenty five cents to the panful.

FLINT DISTRICT QUARTZ.

A gentleman showed us the figures of a test of one pound of Flint District rock. The rock was not the best but carefully manipulated. Gave nearly $100 per ton.

HORSES STOLEN.

Last Sunday night, twenty horses were stolen from War Eagle Mountain. Believed to have been the work of Indians. Others were taken above and near Silver; also below Boonville—in fact on every side.

A NEW PAPER AT IDAHO CITY.

We learn that the press and materials are insured to be at Idaho City last December in charge of Pat. Malone, is now at the Owyhee Landing on Snake River, and is to go to Idaho City to be used by the Union party during the election canvass. Curious arrangement in politics.

CITIZENS ON THE WAR PATH.

During the present week much excitement has prevailed on the Indian question—and with good reason, too. Several meetings have been held in Silver. Result: Considerable money, equipments, and nearly a hundred men with thirty days' rations. The Chinamen found out what was going on, and "Charley" wanted to equip and send thirty of his countrymen but they were not accepted. They are, however, willing to aid all they can and have furnished thirty or forty good horses. The expedition is well supplied with arms and express a determination to make a few Los late the dust. Leave Silver under command of Isaac Jennings. Will not make a fighting organization until they reach Flint—where they expected to arrive last night.

CHINAMEN COMING.

Almost every abandoned claim or gulch in which the color of gold can be found, has its gang of Chinamen at work. A large wagon load of them arrived on Sunday via Humboldt. They left Quinn River on the 3d, and saw no Indians. The red men appear to have left the lower country for this section, and are concentrating for mischief.

SOLDIERS FOR FLINT.

Captain Hinton with sixty infantry reached Flint District last night. They camped in Silver on Thursday night. The company are supplied with thirty days' rations. We learn that Major Marshall is bound to go after Lo to some purpose.

The following items are from the Boise City Statesman:

DISTRIBUTION OF TROOPS.

Captain Collins moved yesterday morning with his company and three months' subsistence, for Warner Lake. Although his orders only comprehend a summer's campaign, it is believed a permanent post will be established there, and one or more companies kept there all next winter.

Captain Sinclair also started for the Bruneau on Sunday last. Their orders are published in another column this morning.

We see by the Avalanche that Captain Hinton with sixty infantry had reached Flint last week. It will be seen by the late disposition of troops that they are being posted in a number of places most frequented by the Indians, and where if routed they will be most likely to retreat. Now if a sufficient number of cavalry were started after them on the Owyhee, with horses enough to fight them and pursue them, there need not be a hundred hostile Indians left between here and California in three months time.

UNION TICKET FOR OWYHEE.

The Union men of Owyhee county have nominated the following ticket for the Legislature and for county officers: Sheriff, A. C. Springer; County Treasurer, J. A. Post. Assessor, J. S. Hallenbeck, Surveyor, O. A. Palmer. Commissioners, J. S. Head and J. Hurlat; County Clerk, Chas. Hilton; Superintendent Public Schools, J. S. Moore; Coroner, G. W. Gilman. For Council, A. McMillan; for Representatives, B. M. Smith, Jas. Howe and A. A. Moore. For County Judge, W. H. Davenport.

MISCELLANEOUS FROM THE "AVALANCHE."

Messenger from Camp Lyon says a keg of whisky was introduced the other day and the result was a general fight. Damaged heads were numerous. Gen'l Halleck not arrived.

Messrs. More & Fogus cleaned up about $15,000 in bullion the past week.

Blake Bros. are about establishing an assay office in Silver. H. B. Maize is erecting an office 10x30, just opposite Wells, Fargo & Co.'s location, on Washington street.

S. W. Childs says he will start an express to Star City on Wednesday coming. Will make weekly trips. Time three days to Star and two and one-half returning. Will carry letters in W. F. & Co.'s envelope at 37½ and others 50 cts. each. Has horses enough and to spare.

Three teams from Honey Lake laden with flour and barley arrived on Monday. They came through without an escort and did not see an Indian. Another evidence that the rascals are concentrating on the upper Owyhee.

Mr Indian perches upon high rocks and other eminences during the day and watches his pale brother's (?) movements. O. R. Johnson took a short cut to Camp Lyon from Reynolds Creek, and on the way saw a little band of Piutes watching him from an elevation. After taking a full survey they fell back out of sight.

The Court for Owyhee county has adjourned to July 21. It will then be convened by Judge John Cummins—recent Internal Revenue Collector—who is only awaiting his commission, or authority by telegraph to enter upon the discharge of the duties of the office.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

READ AND REFLECT.

Make sure of HEALTH. "But how?" you ask;
We answer, 'tis an easy task,
Strengthen the STOMACH, and sustain
The NERVES, the servants of the brain.
The LIVER keep in active play
And regulate, from day to day.
Each organ aid, on Nature's plan,
Brace and refresh the INNER MAN,
And like a watch that's kept in chime
By constant care, with railroad time,
The system's tone and strength renew,
And thereby cheer the spirits, too.
"How," you inquire, "can this be done?
This Victory o'er Disease be won?"
"HOSTETTER'S BITTERS," we reply,
Is HEALTH'S SUPREME PROTECTION—TRY!

As a means of regenerating the disordered and enfeebled system, regulating every function of the internal organs, reviving the depressed spirits, invigorating the constitution, and prolonging life, [illegible] medicinal preparation, either of the past or the present time, has been so completely and universally successful as

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Against the vapors fœtid prepare,
That fester-taint the heavy air,
Drink not unmixed the water found
In prairies, woods or marshy ground
If sedentary toil you ply,
Nature you must assist—or die—
For when debarred from exercise
For artificial aid she cries.
Medicine a grand purpose and intent
Is threatened evil to prevent.
And if you'd be relieved or spared
From ills that crush the unprepared,
Hostetter's Bitters use—for note
They are the SUREST ANTIDOTE.

To set at defiance the miasma of unhealthy soils, the poison of unwholesome water, the effluvia of crowded work-rooms and factories, and the baneful influence of sedentary employments, it is only necessary to be forearmed with

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Dyspepsia's pangs, that rack and grind
The body, and depress the mind,
Agues, that as they go and come,
Make life a constant martyrdom;
Colics and dysentric pains,
'Neath which the strong man's vigor wanes;
Bilious complaints, those tedious ills,
Ne'er conquered yet by drastic pills;
Dread diarrhoea that cannot be
Cured by destructive mercury;
Slow constitutional decay
That brings Death nearer, day by day;
Nervous prostration, mental gloom—
Heralds of madness or the tomb;
For these—though mineral nostrums fail—
Means of Relief at least we hail,
HOSTETTER'S BITTERS—medicine sure,
Not to prevent, alone, but cure.

In dyspepsia, fever and ague, bilious complaints, constitutional and nervous debility, constipation, sea-sickness, spasms, and in all complaints of Man or Woman, proceeding from casual or inherent weakness of the body, the one great remedy and restorative is

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

To wanderers on sea or land,
From Polar shore to Tropic strand;
To households lone, in regions new,
And dwellers in great cities, too;
To soldiers in camp, fort and field,
Who need against disease a shield;
To miners, California bound,
And tillers of wet, marshy ground,
To feeble wives of fragile mould,
To young and middle-aged, and old,
To those in health, who would enjoy
Heaven's best gifts without alloy;
To all the strengthless, weak and pale,
Who droop, yet know not what they ail;
Hostetter's Bitters we present
As Health's most potent element.

If there is any value in public opinion, or any weight in medical testimony, the very best and safest Tonic, Corrective and Alterative now before the world is

They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras roots and herbs all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.

Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen merchants, &c. is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day in case increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

The Late Daniel S. Dickinson

At a meeting of the New York Bar recently in memory of the late Daniel S. Dickinson interesting remarks were made by several prominent members. Judge Pierrepont read the following lines which were written by Mr. Dickinson to his wife only five days before his death:

TO LYDIA

[illegible] when life was new
And earth was fresh with [illegible] and flowers,
And [illegible] was warm and [illegible] time,
And [illegible] and hope our own were ours.

We started then [illegible] hand [illegible]
[illegible] changeful path of life,
And [illegible] trusting [illegible]
The [illegible]

We [illegible]
[illegible] through vale and glen
And [illegible] the hill sides green
[illegible] future then.

We caught the song of earliest birds,
We culled the loveliest flowers of spring
We [illegible] in whispering words,
And time sped by on airy wing.

[illegible] passed [illegible] were found
[illegible] by the birth
[illegible] whose clustered round,
[illegible] with smiles our humble hearth.

[illegible] forth before the world
[illegible] fame,
Where hope's proud banner is unfurled,
And [illegible] oft a name.

Thus [illegible] we rode the dark
[illegible] tide of public life,
And [illegible] fared with slender bark,
The elements of storm and strife.

But storm and strife, thank Heaven, have passed,
The night has fled and morning come!
And we [illegible] mariners at last
[illegible] more to hearth and home.

But [illegible] loved ones God has given,
Two have returned—two sank to rest;
[illegible] morning called to Heaven,
[illegible] bright mansions of the blest.

They sleep amid [illegible] Spring Forest's glades,
Where flows its streamlet murmuring waves,
And oft at evening's gentle shades
We'll weep beside their early graves.

Our First Venture in Real Estate

The worthy man to whom the writer of these pages owes a wife's allegiance is engaged through the day in one of the darkest and closest of our counting-houses, and his nights were passed in a monotonous suburban street until circumstances permitted him to indulge himself, and me, in the long sighed for luxury of a home in the country, where he, during his scanty leisure, could enjoy purer air, and I should be free to renew some of the habits and pleasures of my girlhood.

We proposed to effect this change in a very simple and economical manner—our purse as well as our tastes still forbidding anything lavish or ostentatious—and resolutely to eschew the Douro Villas and Wellington Lodges which constitute the "genteel" neighborhoods of all those localities around the metropolis which Londoners favor. We had no desire to rent a dwelling where comfort was sacrificed to the effect produced by queer little turrets and pinnacles, or where plate glass and a tiny conservatory are expected to obviate all the inconveniences of ill-seasoned doors, badly hung windows, and half-finished fittings. We resolved to enter into no arrangements which could interfere with our withdrawal from the new plan, if it did not work well, and to content ourselves with a simple cottage at a reasonable distance—say ten or twelve miles—from Temple Bar, and with no more ground attached to it than we could ourselves keep in order, with some occasional assistance from a jobbing gardener.

Any one who has prosecuted a similar search will bear me witness that it is an arduous one. The bona fide, unpretentious cottage of six or seven rooms, which we were bent on obtaining, is seldom to be found, or, when discovered, is still more rarely empty. We inserted and answered advertisements to no purpose, patiently endured the ill concealed sneers and pomposity of house-agents who "rarely had anything so low rented entered upon their books," and traveled many miles in vain. But at last we found what we wanted in the vicinity of the town of K——, and eagerly secured it.

The Nest, as its owner had named it, had not been erected above twelve months, consequently it was clean and fresh; and, having been originally intended for his own family, was carefully finished off, and well supplied with many little conveniences rarely met with in a new house. The water was disagreeably hard, and rather brackish, and the soil a stiff clay; but with the help of a filter we made shift to use the former, and the luxuriance of our roses soon reconciled us to the latter.

I must not linger over the happy days we spent at The Nest, for, alas! those days were few. We had barely entered on the second summer of our tenancy, and in the full zest of projected improvements were watching with amateur's delight the growth of flowers and vegetables which we honestly believed to be perfection, when our landlord made an unexpected call. With a profusion of apologies he explained that his wife—who had strenuously opposed the whim which had compelled her to leave her pleasant little dwelling—losing her health in the closer atmosphere of the town, had won from him a promise to give us (at midsummer) six months' notice to quit.

With an excess of caution which I now bitterly deplored, we had refused to take a lease of The Nest; and therefore could only submit, and try to console ourselves with the recollection, that the distance from the railway station and the dullness of the dark and unfrequented road had often been felt—although never before acknowledged—during the winter months. We were now eager to get away from a spot which had lost its attractions for what enjoyment was there in planning flower-beds or training honey suckles, whose blossoming in the ensuing spring my eyes would not behold?

But what course to pursue it was hard to determine. Should we commence another wearying round of inquiries? or—and this was an idea for which we were indebted to our grocer, one of those indefatigable little men who, amidst a multiplicity of affairs of their own, find time to know and interest themselves in their neighbors'—should we invest a small legacy lately bequeathed to us in a plot of land, and build for ourselves such a home as we were now reluctantly relinquishing?

The United Townsmen of K——'s Building Society possessed (so the grocer informed us) a charming little estate on the west of the Borough, which as yet was wholly unbuilt upon; and if we thought seriously of the notion, he, as secretary and general manager of the society, would be most happy to further our wishes to the utmost of his ability.

Accompanied by him, we accordingly inspected the Westborough estate, and found that his encomiums were not much exaggerated. Situated on a gentle slope, approached by a pretty winding lane, and commanding pleasant prospect,—on the one side of fields, through which a small stream ran glittering in the sunshine, and on the other of the gray-towered church and blocks of antiquated buildings comprising the ancient borough of K——, nothing could be more suitable to our purpose. Rural and secluded, yet within distance of the town and rail, we both felt tolerably certain that for this once, at least, fortune was favoring us.

In reply to a prudent suggestion that the spot would soon lose half its attractions if too closely built upon, the secretary hastened to assure us that the long stretch of greensward fronting the site we had selected was, with one or two trifling exceptions, his own property, and that he proposed converting it into a garden for the use of his family. The land immediately adjoining the estate belonging to the Corporation who were then putting an iron railing around it, and for the rest, as the mass of people generally follow the lead of the few, he did not doubt that, if we broke ground by putting up a tasteful and convenient structure, others would take their tone from ours; and, as a natural consequence, the Westborough estate, sprinkled with pretty cottages,—ornees,—would far surpass that at Eastborough, which, as every one knew, London contractors had crowded with expensive and ugly crescents and terraces.

The little secretary talked so fast and learnedly on all these points, and so fraternally advised us how to carry out the undertaking, that our original determination not to move in the matter until after due deliberation, was wholly forgotten. A few days found us in possession of a plot of free hold land and immersed in the study of the plans and specifications sent in by a practical builder, to whom the grocer recommended us, and who, I must do him the justice to say, executed the work intrusted to him well and reasonably.

By the last day of the following year our cottage was pronounced to be in a fit state for occupation, and I hurried up from my native village in Devonshire, where a troublesome cough had induced my spouse to insist on my wintering, instead of sharing with him the discomforts of a London lodging during the time we were homeless. The building, simple as it was, looked remarkably well as we approached it, although the pretty winding lane was now little better than a slough, and in some places was almost impassable. But the secretary, who had somehow learned the hour of my intended arrival, and had taken the trouble to be present at it, assured me that the Corporation intend making a good sound road as far as their own property extended, and as regarded the roads and paths on the Westborough estate itself, we could persuade our fellow owners to unite with us in making them (technical this, but we soon learned the signification), the parish would take them off our hands, and keep them in repair.

With the interior of our dwelling I was pleased, much pleased, but externally there was many unsatisfactory changes. The frontage of greensward which my fancy had been picturing converted into a pretty flower garden, was partly sublet, and divided into small allotments by rails and fences of the rudest description, while the portion the secretary had reserved for himself was covered with patches of turnip greens and rows of cabbages. The glimpse, I should say, of the river and the church tower, which I had thought so picturesque, was now completely blocked out by a squat, ugly, little four roomed red brick house, before and behind which lines filled with fluttering garments proclaimed the business of its occupant.

My husband helplessly shrugging his shoulders and remaining silent, the grocer tranquilly replied to exclamations of regret and annoyance.

"Oh yes, certainly; the little place I pointed out did not boast of any beauty, but Mrs. Smith was a most industrious praiseworthy creature, and had built it entirely from her savings. I must do him the justice to remember that he had not claimed the whole of the frontage. He had mentioned an exception or two, and Mrs. Smith's allotment was one of them. A clump of young trees nicely planted would hide it from the morning sun and effectually conceal the laundry if we really thought it unsightly.

It I

And this large building on the land belonging to the Corporation, for what was this intended? It must have been in progress for some months, and yet had never been mentioned in my husband's letters.

"That," and the secretary's face wore a look of profound astonishment, "was the chapel of the new cemetery. Was it possible that I had resided so long in the vicinity of it, and had never heard of the Burial Board, and the closing of the church yard, and the parochial squabbles about it? O dear, no, I shouldn't find it a great disadvantage. He was sure as he had often said to my excellent partner here, quite sure that I was not one of those nervous ladies who make troubles of trifles. The bell! Well, yes, certainly it might have a depressing influence at first, but it was astonishing how soon people got used to those sort of things, and as to it making Westborough dull, so once a little cemetery on the whole he must have quite a contrary effect, and would doubtless become the favorite resort of the townsfolk. Besides, there were militia barracks in K——, there would be military funerals occasionally—full band—'Dead March in Saul'—splendid piece of music that! 'Dead March in Saul,' going, lively march in returning. No, no, I should not find Westborough dull, I might depend upon it."

It was no use arguing with this obtuse man, and it would be equally useless to dilate upon all I have endured since the consecration of the cemetery. Time may blunt my sensitiveness to the melancholy tolling of that dreadful bell, and may reconcile me to the vistas of tombstones, obelisks and urns which are rising in the foreground of the view from my drawing-room windows, but of this I must be permitted to remain dubious.

In the meanwhile the cottage ornees which were to have sprinkled this estate are myths. Too late for ourselves we have made the discovery that Westborough, owing to its close proximity to a low and filthy suburb of the little town, is in disrepute with the more respectable portion of the inhabitants, and as no one will build handsome houses where there is so little chance of their being let, all the allotments in our immediate vicinity are being, to our dismay, rapidly covered with four-roomed tenements, which are commonly occupied by two families.

As the secretary's cabbages and potatoes continued to flourish before our eyes for a lengthened period, we, regarding these as a lesser evil than bricks and mortar, were hopeful of preserving an aristocratic distance from our fast increasing neighbors. But, alas! the one little exception which faces our front door is now adorned—shall I say it?—by a long, low shed, in which a man, his wife, and sundry olive branches have taken up their abode, and, the smallness of their domicile necessarily interfering with their movements, they, with an utter disregard of my feelings, perform as many as possible of their domestic duties in the open air. Added to this, volumes of smoke and steam on Monday mornings, and the additional presence of three matrons who sing and chatter at a row of wash tubs, proclaim the unpleasant fact that Mrs. Black is a professor of the purifying art also.

The erection of this shed, and the irruptions we are constantly suffering of Daniel Black's noisy saucy children, have aroused my peace-loving spouse into remonstrating with the secretary, who instantly admitted that the said Daniel Black had scandalously infringed his agreement by putting up such a hovel instead of a decent dwelling house. A notice was promptly served upon the man to the effect that it must be removed. But as it appears that the society cannot enforce the pulling down of an erection merely intended to fulfil the purpose of a stable or laundry, David Black, with equal promptitude, took lodgings for his family, and affirmed he was not converting his shed into a dwelling house, inasmuch as he did not sleep in it.

This quashed the threatened proceedings, and at the end of a week the two bedsteads which had been temporarily taken away were brought back, and Daniel Black's triumph celebrated by an orgy which kept me awake half the night.

Twice has this futile endeavor to eject him been made, the recurrence of the same being certified to us by a visit from a juvenile Black for the loan of a bed-winch, and the wheeling away of sundry lathes, poles, and bundles, on a hand-barrow; while the defeat of the society is tacitly understood, when, in the course of a week or two, the winch is returned to us, and the hand barrow brings back its load.

Anxious to be rid of this eyesore, but equally desirous to avoid embroiling ourselves with persons whose angry passions it would not be well to arouse, we have endeavored through the secretary to treat for the purchase of Daniel Black's landed property. But he has positively declined our liberal offer, alleging "that he isn't likely to meet with another bit o' ground with such a pleasant look-out, or such 'spectable neighbors opposite," and as a proof of his interest in our well doing, my appearance among the flower beds generally evokes him at the railing, where he lounges, smokes and favors me with his opinions on our proceedings, with a freedom which compelled me to give up gardening, except in his absence from home.

However excellent dearly bought experience may be, I cannot doubt that many of my readers prefer achieving theirs through the misadventures of others. Our own, therefore, may not be without its uses as a caution "to persons about to build." Though incautious haste in purchasing a new site, we are beset with small difficulties, or, rather, with great annoyances. Without drainage or lamps; and with no prospect of a better road than I have already described, until non resident owners can be persuaded to subscribe a share of the expense of improving, yet we are heavily rated for all these necessaries, and, to complete our mortification, the secretary has just received an offer from Barrel, the great Brewer, for his cabbage garden, which, in justice to his family, he feels it his duty to accept. Consequently, in a few months, our vis-a-vis will be a public house, ostensibly erected for the convenience of visitors to the cemetery.

Again, we are asking ourselves what course we shall pursue? Will this public confession of our disappointments and distress avail to extricate us from them? To an author meditating an enlarged edition of Hervey's "Meditations on the Tomb," or an essay on Epitaphs, our cottage would be an appropriate retreat, or to a philanthropic individual benevolently desirous of investigating, and reforming the habits and customs of the lower classes, Westborough presents a fine field, and we shall be most happy to let or sell on terms advantageous to the purchasers.

Insulting the Dead.—On the 26th of April the Southern women of Augusta, Ga., assembled, marched in procession to the cemetery, and with singing and speech making, cast flowers upon the graves of the rebel dead who were buried there. No one objected. The tribute to the slain was deemed proper, even by those who despised the cause in which they fell.

A few days ago, the Union women of the city gathered for the purpose of paying like honors to the Union soldiers interred in the same cemetery. But when they reached the grounds, they were met by the Mayor and a posse of his officers, who compelled them to turn back, declaring that no compliment should be paid to "public enemies and invaders of the South."

General Brannan, military commander and Colonel Tillison, Freedmen's Bureau agent, were appealed to. Both proved subservient dough faces of the most unmitigated character. They sustained the infamous course of the Mayor and his assistants, and said that nothing must be done "to exasperate the people." The Union women were therefore compelled to return sorrowfully to their homes, and the graves of the martyred brave were not decked.

This despicable outrage calls for prompt and speedy atonement. If the Southern people desire to pay honors to the remains of their fallen—well. But they must not insult the defenders of the Union who sleep in their soil. It strikes us that Brannan and Tillison—who sanctioned the infamous proceeding—are proper subjects of official inquiry.—(Albany, (N. Y.) Journal.

The demand for labor greatly exceeds the supply in all portions of Virginia. The wages of the male freedmen average about $12 per month, including food, quarters and medical attendance.

What Dr Gwin Thinks of his Arrest and Imprisonment

The New Orleans Picayune in announcing the release of ex-Senator Gwin from Fort Jackson, makes the following comments on his case which are evidently from the dictation of the "Duke of Sonora." The Picayune says:

Every effort of the Doctor failed to discover or to elicit the faintest intimation of the cause of his imprisonment. Gen. Sheridan, who acted toward the Doctor with every kindness and courtesy compatible with his orders from Washington, appeared to be equally ignorant of the reasons for his imprisonment. The Doctor knew that Mr. Seward had always professed a warm personal regard for him, that he had do [sic] hand to issue an order for his arrest on a previous occasion, and he could not believe that he was the author or was voluntarily the actor in his harsh treatment. There was some slight intimation that the Doctor's arrest and imprisonment were due to his connection with the Sonora colonization scheme, but this could hardly be credited for several reasons.

1. That scheme had no sort of relation to the controversy between the United States and the Confederate States. It was simply a private enterprise for the establishment of a colony in a remote State of Mexico, with a view of developing the great mining resources of the country, in the success of which all Americans, and, indeed, the civilized world, were interested.

2. This scheme had the sanction and aproval of both Louis Napoleon and Maximilian when first proposed, but as the Doctor looked to the American race to compose and build up his colony, no statesman of this country should have regarded it with any other feelings but those of favor, encouragement and support, looking to the inevitable possession and control of this country by our race. So long as our Government had abandoned the Monroe Doctrine it became quite obvious that the only mode of reaching the practical end of that doctrine was by this system of colonization. The sanction of Napoleon and Maximilian of this scheme became necessary from this very surrender, on the part of our Government, of that ancient doctrine.

If there was nothing, therefore, in the Doctor's scheme hostile to the interests of the United States, his detention and imprisonment had the aspect of either a concession to the demand of one of the foreign powers connected with the enterprise, or as a slight and indignity to the other. In either case we should not consider it a justifiable or becoming act. It is well known that Maximilian, after an interview with Louis Napoleon and Dr. Gwin, in Paris, before assuming the Imperial Crown, had fully approved and sanctioned the Doctor's plan. Dr. Gwin simply warned him of the opposition it would encounter from the Mexicans; that they were hostile to and jealous of our civilization, and would do everything to defeat it, but that if he (Maximilian) would stand his ground firmly, the enterprise would succeed, and that if he yielded, his crown would become a paper one, and his empire a dream.

Maximilian then fully concurred in this view but when the Doctor presented himself in the City of Mexico, with the full recommendation of Louis Napoleon, the young Austrian adventurer had changed his views and fallen into the Mexican policy and spirit. He would not give the Doctor an audience, and even when the latter had made another visit to Paris, and returned with new credentials and authority, he was still perversely opposed and hostile to the whole scheme.

It was then, the Confederate movement having failed, that the Doctor returned to his native country, determined to resume his duties as a good citizen. He was arrested on his arrival here by orders from Washington and sent to Fort Jackson, where he has remained a close prisoner for eight months. Many applications have been made for the release of the Doctor, and suggestions have been made to him to consent to a medical survey, with a view of obtaining a certificate that his health would be injuriously affected by his longer imprisonment. To all these propositions he has made an emphatic negative. As to his health he declares he never was better—he was growing every hour stronger and heartier. He was equally emphatic in declining to submit to any conditions for his release save those given by other Confederates who were charged with no crime. As to the proposition that he should pledge himself to leave the country and remain abroad, his reply was "Never. This is my country. I was born here, and intend to leave my bones in this soil. Exile is next to death in the grade of punishment; imprisonment follows exile. I am now suffering the third degree of punishment, and I won't exchange it for the second degree." To the suggestion that he should swear allegiance to the United States, his reply was "He was a native citizen and not a foreigner, and would not recognize the right of requiring such an oath from him."

What then did he demand and desire?

To meet any charges against me, even before a Military Commission, and have a fair or any sort of trial, so that I may know the cause of my imprisonment and establish my innocence and integrity, or if this is not conceded, that I should go out on my parole such as has been given by the soldiers of the Confederacy. This latter proposition was at last accepted, and the Doctor is once more a free citizen, to the great delight of his numerous friends, and to the relief of his family, who are now in Europe. He expresses his grateful acknowledgment for much courtesy and kindness from Gen. Sheridan and the United States officers with whom he was brought into relations during his captivity, manifests no malice to any one, and seems to be full of vigor, hope, and a strong will to resume his career as a citizen and patriot.

Some weeks ago President Johnson availed himself of several occasions publicly to declare that he held in detestation the treachery of Tyler and Fillmore to the political associates by whom they were elevated to the height of power, and that he should carefully avoid following their example. A correspondent of the London Times, writing from Washington at about the date of these Presidential declarations, details minutely a conversation he had with the President. His letter has within a few days, been published in full in the New York journals. He states that Mr. Johnson admitted to him that his object was to drive the Republicans out of power, and to place the control of the Government, in all its departments, in the hands of the late rebels and their northern sympathizers. Every careful observer of events knows that this is the end to which all the efforts of the President tend. It is easy, therefore, to estimate the degree of sincerity with which he professes to be fighting his quarrel out inside the Republican lines.—Pittsburg Gazette.

The Unconditional Union men of Maryland thus state their policy, in the resolves of a great meeting which they have just held at Hagerstown.

Resolved, That we are alike opposed to granting suffrage to the negro in Maryland and representation of non voting negroes by rebels, and that therefore we fully endorse the constitutional amendment to the Constitution, basing representation on the voting population, and all laws forever prohibiting the leading rebels from holding any office of confidence or trust.

Resolved, That we firmly believe that the safety and perpetuity of the Republican Government, both State and National, depend on the retention of power in the hands of loyal men and therefore that we adhere to the doctrine that none but loyal men should govern a State even if their number should be less than five thousand.

Resolved, That we firmly adhere to the registry law of Maryland and oppose any effort to repeal or modify the same.
